

Veterinary Medicine

Speaker: Dr. Frolich Lim & Dr. Alaine Hu

Dr. Frolich Lim enjoys the clinical side of veterinary medicine, especially dentistry and preventative medicine. He has a BS degree in Animal Science and is a Doctor of Veterinary Medicine. He hopes to join veterinary missions to underserved areas in the United States and overseas.

Prior to entering the world of small animal veterinary medicine, Dr. Hu worked as a racetrack veterinarian in Southern California for 3 years. She has also volunteered as a veterinarian in Mongolia, where she attended to large and small animals. Her main interests in small animal veterinary medicine are surgery and emergency medicine.

Dr. Lim attended Cornell University, where he received a Bachelor of Science degree in Animal Science. He went on to receive his Doctorate of Veterinary Medicine from Cornell College of Veterinary Medicine. He has participated in various community service activities and Christian ministries, and hopes to join veterinary missions to underserved areas in the United States and overseas.

Dr. Alaine Hu received her Doctorate of Veterinary Medicine degree from the University of California Davis, School of Veterinary Medicine. Following graduation, Dr. Hu participated in equine surgery and medicine internships at Rood and Riddle Equine Hospital in Lexington, Kentucky, and San Luis Rey Equine Hospital in San Diego, California. Prior to entering the world of small animal veterinary medicine, Dr. Hu worked as a racetrack veterinarian in Southern California for 3 years. Before joining Kirkwood Animal Hospital, Dr. Hu volunteered as a veterinarian in Mongolia, where she attended to large and small animals. Her main interests in small animal veterinary medicine are surgery and emergency medicine.

LinkedIn Profile: <http://www.linkedin.com/pub/frolich-lim/14/260/578>

